Jumping off the open floor plan bandwagon.

The biggest residential trend in decades is fading from view in favor of broken plan or flexible living. As rooms take on more diverse roles, we're creating divisions and walls to add privacy for personal or business needs.

Shifting into specialized rooms.

More time at home means spaces need to work in more specialized ways. Take a second look and what was once a guestroom can become a schoolroom. A closet can morph into an office. Even a small nook can have a fresh purpose.

Moving into slow living.

Rural escapism provides a form of self-care for city dwellers. Seeking comfort by escaping into a quiet home oasis, they value lazy days meandering without a plan and no to-do lists in sight.

Never compromise®

Our 2022 Color Trends Collection began with a comprehensive look at the world.

The creation of the Pratt & Lambert® Paint 2022 Color Trends palette began by researching global lifestyle trends from culture, media, fashion, design, food and technology.

Our fresh perspective was the jumping-off point that led to the selection of the forward-thinking colors featured in this brochure.

This year's palette takes a simplified approach to color forecasting. It provides trending color combinations but also focuses on them singularly, too, especially this year's Color of the Year: Gray Mist.

As the premium, unsurpassed paint choice for designers, architects, professional painters and discerning consumers, we wanted to provide extraordinary colors that inspire and look beautiful inside and out. We're confident that you'll agree – that's exactly what we did.
